

POLITICAL COMPLEXION OF NEXT STATE LEGISLATURE DECIDED BY LAST ELECTION

The Fourth state legislature will consist in the senate of fourteen democrats and five republicans. In the house there will be eight republicans and twenty-seven democrats. A more interesting classification as well as a more vital one, is that of conservatives and radicals. How the senate will be aligned in that respect can be pretty well determined and it is said that it will consist of fourteen conservatives and five radicals.

The line in the house is not quite so clear but from what can be learned that branch will contain at least eighteen conservatives.

The following is a list by counties. Members of either house who have served in a previous session of that house will be indicated by a * Members of either house who have served in the other house will be designated by **.

A Flu Lyric

There's a subthig id my liver,
Add ad achig dowl by spide,
Add a wintry kide of shiver
Round about by sore inside;
Add my body's sibby freezing,
Though I'b covered up with rugs,
Add I feel a constade wheezing
Id the bottob of by lugs!
Add I'b sick to death of feeding,
Add I caddot even drink,
Add I've given up by reading
Add I caddot sleep a wick!
Yes! It's patetd that by head's id
Add idisufferable stew,
Add I'l have to take sub dedid,
For I've got the wretched flu!

Purely Personal

Fred Robinson, brother of Mrs. J. R. Thompson, stopped in Kingman over Thursday and Friday on his way from Los Angeles to Phoenix.

*Mrs. W. W. Lewis returned this week from a visit to Colorado.

J. A. Christie and party from the Needles Santa Fe office passed through Kingman on a trip to Seligman Friday.

Miss Marion Primm returned from Los Angeles Thursday evening and will remain here indefinitely.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Quigley and family stopped in town from Chloride, Friday, on their way to Bakersfield. They intend spending the winter on the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. George came over from Oatman yesterday to spend the day with friends in Kingman.

INFLUENZA VICTIMS

W. G. Damon and his good wife are laid up with influenza or something approaching the disease and are confined to their home. Joseph Norwood, machine operator, is also confined to his home with a bad cold. Thus the editorial and operating rooms of this great religious newspaper are somewhat crippled, but we will try to give the many subscribers the worth of their money just the same.

All the invalids are getting along nicely and expect to be on deck by next week.

A WAR BABY

There was born to the wife of William Jones, last Monday night, a baby girl. Mother and child are getting along nicely.

THE ARMISTICE SIGNED AND KAISER ABDICATES

"When the devil was sick,
The devil a saint would be.
When the devil was well
The devil a saint was he."

And the devil was sick, not of the blood and carnage, the debauching of women or the murder of old men and babes, but with the fear that comes to the cowardly murderer when his crime is discovered and he is brought to book for his crimes. Bill, who instituted one of the greatest wars in the world's history and who caused the debauchery and death of more innocents than all the bloody butchers of ancient times, fearing for his own precious pelt and those of his six mongrel sons, took the coward's choice and sued for peace. No brave man will strike a fallen foe, but if ever man was justified in casting the rule to the winds the people of England, France and Belgium would be justified in continuing the fight until the last Hun was slaughtered, whether he be on his knees begging for mercy or hiding behind the skirts of his women folk.

The terms of the armistice, which foreshadows peace, are long and may be drastic, but not one iota of the demands should be rescinded. Every drop of blood shed on the sacred soils of France and Belgium should be wiped out by the sweat of the ravaging Hun. And every man jack of them who are responsible for all the savagery imposed on these ravaged countries should be handed over to them and made to pay with their blood for the deeds. No form of government that may be established in Germany can ever have the countenance of the world. Their word is not good to any peoples or any nation, and therefore they should be forever kept without the door, forbidden to enter any mart or any port in the world. Closed in by the people who excrete them they should forever remain incommunicado.

They may pay in dollars for the destruction they have wrought, but they can never pay in this world or the next for the foul deed they have done to the womanhood of France and Belgium.

We shall now see if they live up to any part of the terms of the armistice they have signed. It will be on the 25th day of November that they are to be clear of all invaded territory, have turned over all vessels, both naval and merchant. By a camouflage movement all vessels have been seized by the German sailors and now the cry will be that it is impossible for the army to turn over that which they have no control over. But it won't go with Foch. He will begin the battle anew to enforce his demands, and if it comes to this issue there will be no stopping before Berlin is reached. It will be remembered by our elder people that one of the articles of peace the Germans impressed upon France in 1870 was that a new government be established in that country within ninety days and that the victorious army march through Paris. There will be no peace between the allies and Germany until a stable government is established and our armies should march through the streets of Berlin.

AN EARLY PREDICTION

Like Mother Shipton's prophesy, a New York woman predicted last spring that the war would end on Nov. 11, or so we are lead to believe by a note on the editor's desk. To predict is easy. At least ten or fifteen millions of people have made predictions of the end of the war in prose and verse and surely some one of this vast number ought to guess the exact day and hour. It would be like a whole community guessing the number of beans in the bottle. But as yet we have heard no one predict the fate that is to befall William, the beast who brought on the war. It would really be easy to predict bad Bill's fate were he to fall into the hands of the outraged Belgians or Frenchmen. And no matter what punishment they might mete out to him and his dastardly cohorts it would be far from what he ought to get.

TWO LITTLE WOODEN SHOES

Joe Kauss has been exhibiting around town this week two wooden shoes that were sent one of his daughters from France. One was of adult size and the other was for the baby. The larger one was built partly of wood with upper of heavy leather, while the baby boot was entirely of wood. The two are relics to be prized.

EPIDEMIC OF INFLUENZA STILL TAKING TOLL

This week the influenza epidemic in Kingman and vicinity is still taking its toll of lives, although the greater number of those reported to be ill are of a mild nature. At the hospital there have been three deaths, Mrs. C. H. Smith, of Stockton Hill; John Norgaard, of Stockton Hill, and C. D. Fleming, of Pueblo, Colorado.

Mr. Fleming, who came to Kingman last week, was taken down with influenza, which developed into pneumonia. He had made the trip with his wife, three children and brother and wife in an automobile. The brother is at the hospital and the wife is reported to be ill at the last lodging house. Mrs. C. D. Fleming leaves with her husband's body this evening for the old home in Pueblo. Deceased leaves a wife, three children, a brother and father and mother to mourn his demise. He was formerly in the employment of the Santa Fe railroad as a machinist.

John Norgaard was a miner at Stockton Hill, where he contracted the influenza and was brought to Kingman for treatment. He was in no condition to combat the disease and although receiving the best treatment he failed rapidly until death came.

There are 41 patients at the hospital, but all are getting along nicely. Some difficulty has been encountered in getting nurses, but people are doing all possible to pull the patients through. Women are offering their services as cooks, dishwashers and in all other capacities and men are serving as watchers and nurses wherever needed.

It is reported that there are about 150 cases in and around the town, many having been brought in from other localities to get the benefit of nurse and doctor's care.

ROY SOWERS DEAD

Roy Sowers, well known in Kingman, died at Needles last Saturday from pneumonia growing out of a case of influenza. Roy was an excellent fellow and well liked wherever he went. He has one brother in the U. S. service in France and a sister somewhere in the east.

Voters of Kingman Precinct:

I desire to thank my many friends, through the columns of this paper, for the hearty support given me at the polls last Tuesday. If elected, as the latest returns would seem to indicate, I can assure you that I will do my duty as I see it to the fullest extent.

SAM H. MILLER.

We Give You a Chance---

The modern power laundry is a godsend to the housewife. There is perhaps no other modern improvement so directly helpful to the housewife. It lifts a heavy load from her shoulders, and gives her release from a habit that had become a weekly sentence to so many days of drudgery.

Here's your chance to eliminate the wash day from your weekly program, and practice true economy in so doing. Send your wash to us. Our Semi-Finished Department will wash all your clothes, dry them, and iron the flat work for only 50c per dozen. This we can do on account of the immense volume we handle.

Try us this next week.
